Notes

Telephone numbers are shown in the format +44 20 7216 4612. + represents the international access dialling code for the country from which you are dialling and is most commonly 00. The number with the + sign (44 in this case) is the country code for the country being dialled. The next number, in this case 20, is the national area code, with any leading characters that should be omitted by international callers enclosed in parentheses. The remainder of the phone number is presented in the format normally used in that country.

If you find errors in the directory, please email corrections to the UHY executive office.
